

Who We Are and What We Do

The Rutgers New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station (NJAES) is the way in which the state of New Jersey and Rutgers, The State University of New Jersey, fulfill a joint mission to provide solutions to residents. As a land-grant university, Rutgers is committed to teaching, research, and outreach that improves the lives of all New Jerseyans.

Today, nearly 130 years after the founding of the NJAES, we remain true to our roots. Our services are available through offices in all 21 New Jersey counties. The work that NJAES does is carried out through two units: Cooperative Extension and Cooperative Research. NJAES is also home to the Office of the New Jersey State Climatologist and the Office of Continuing and Professional Education.

Staff in these units include 4-H Agents, Extension Specialists, Family & Community Health Sciences Educators, Agricultural and Resource Management Agents, and program staff. Through these dedicated staff members, NJAES provides continuing-education and certificate programs, works with at-risk youth, educates parents and restaurant owners about food allergies, teaches approaches to healthy lifestyles to combat obesity and diabetes, identifies invasive species, reduces pesticide use, improves soil fertility, and much, much more.

The Rutgers New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station is there when you need us. For more information on our research and outreach programs, please contact your county's Cooperative Extension office at 732-932-5000, option 1.

For more information, visit us at www.njaes.rutgers.edu.

Cooperating Agencies: Rutgers, The State University of New Jersey, U.S. Department of Agriculture, and County Boards of Chosen Freeholders. Rutgers Cooperative Extension, a unit of the Rutgers New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station, is an equal opportunity program provider and employer.

Photo credits (l. to r.): Joseph Blumberg, USDA, and Jack Rabin.

RUTGERS

New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station

Rutgers, The State University of New Jersey
88 Lipman Drive, New Brunswick, NJ 08901-8525
Phone: 732.932.1000